SOME EXTENSION METHODS IN FIELD CROPS WORK

(Abstract)

WALDO KIDDER

Extension work was created to make a point of contact between experiment station workers and the resident teachers and to carry information gained from these to the farmers of the state, with the object of getting the farmers to apply such information on their own farms.

While the experiment station carries on a wide variety of work

1Abstract of a paper presented at the meeting of the Western Section of the American Society of Agronomy held at Laramie, Wyoming, July 21, 1924. Received for publication December 1, 1924.