THE EFFECT OF RATE OF SEEDING ON COMPETITION IN WHEAT VARIETIES.

To what extent different varieties of wheat are affected by the competition due to various rates of seeding has never been fully determined. However, it has been shown that varieties differ from one another in their tillering habit when sown under like conditions of space and fertilization. This would seem to indicate that certain