WINTER BARLEY IN MICHIGAN.

FRANK A. SPRAGG.

Until now, winter barley has not been a success north of the Ohio River as all previously existing varieties were killed by hard winters. The Michigan Experiment Station has three winter barleys that successfully passed the severe winter of 1911–12. All are pedigreed strains from the Office of Cereal Investigations of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. One of these is being increased at the