The 75th Publication Year of Agronomy Journal
Domenic A. Fuccillo*

The purpose of this paper is to mark the 75th anniversary of the Agronomy Journal.

The first volume of the Agronomy Journal was published in April 1907. It contained 14 papers, 9 of which were presented at the 1910 annual meeting. Seven papers presented at the 1911 annual meeting, plus 2 papers subsequently submitted for publication. It also included a report of the Editors over the past 75 years.

In 1910, 2 days after the fifth Society meeting ended, the volume was issued about. The total cost of printing 500 copies was $1.20/copy. Only 129 copies were distributed to members of the Society, but, I hope, brings some of my insights into the publication process by looking at the history.
