Potpourri

Soil Sleuth is Crime Stopper

During November, member Roy Shook came across a just stolen strong box while doing field work in Coventry, CT. The box, which was apparently tossed from a passing car, was lying on the epipedon of an alleged Woodbridge fine sandy loam. Roy gathered up the strong box and its contents, being careful how he handled the evidence (he watches TV cop shows!) and turned it into the Coventry police. The police dusted the box and came up with a robbery suspect. Arrests were made! Turns out the box was stolen between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. and Roy handed it to the police at 10:17 a.m. What timing! The police had the box before its owner even knew it was missing. And for the unlucky robbers: just one more case of a soil sleuth being in the wrong place at the right time. The alleged Woodbridge was a Sutton.

Roy Shook—The Soil Sleuth

Covering all facets of sleuthing, detection, and general wood-wandering

No Job Too Large or Too Small

Roy says: “You lose it, I’ll find it!”

Specializing in Sniffing Out:

- Stolen strong boxes
- Dog leashes
- Unmarked graves
- Lim soils
- Scenic lunch areas

For appointment call: 1-800-DIG-HOLE