Soil Horizons to Cease Publication

Bill Cook

Increasing financial pressures, declining submissions and readership have led the SSSA Board to make the difficult decision to discontinue publication of Soil Horizons. The final issue will be the November–December 2015 issue. Submissions will be accepted through September 15, 2015. All content from 1960 through the final article will remain available in the ACSESS Digital Library and will be fully searchable.

Authors who wish to submit material after September 15 are encouraged to consider Soil Science Society of America Journal, Vadose Zone Journal, Journal of Environmental Quality, or the Tri-Societies’ newest peer-reviewed journal, Agricultural and Environmental Letters. “Features” for Soil Horizons may appear in CSA News or Crops and Soils in the future.

At the request of the Soil Horizons Editorial Board, a subset of that Board will be convened to develop additional publishing options. The SSSA Board greatly appreciates the current Editorial Board, led by Samantha Langley-Turnbaugh, and all past Editors and Associate Editors for their efforts in managing and promoting the journal.